Jen and Chris had been receiving services from their local Resource Center over the past two years.

They had been living in their car, camping in the woods, and occasionally staying at the a winter shelter during the colder months.

They also struggled with addiction, but have been receiving treatment through a methadone clinic and have been sober for the last year.

In October, Jen and Chris entered Concord Coalition to End Homelessness' "Housing First Concord", a permanent supportive housing program.

"We cannot express how grateful we are to have our own place we can call home. And from here on out...I know... we are going to make it in this world. We are going to create a successful life starting with this apartment." - Jen
