GREATER SEACOAST HIGHLIGHT: REDUCING BARRIERS TO AFFORDABLE HOUSING

Collaborating in new ways is the key to addressing complex community issues. A great example of this is how Granite United Way's Affordable Housing Incentive Program (AHIP) has been working with local nonprofits to reduce barriers for individuals and families seeking affordable housing.

AHIP is a program that was created to bring together two key stakeholders - landlords and service providers - to help move individuals out of homelessness and remain stably housed. AHIP offers a comprehensive slate of financial incentives for landlords to keep rents affordable and encourage them to accept Housing Choice Vouchers and other forms of rental assistance. In line with Home for All's mission, AHIP helps ensure that everyone in this program is housed with dignity. AHIP tenants are moving into clean, maintained units and a place that anyone - regardless of their circumstance - can proudly call home.

"It's important that programs like AHIP exist – people don't want to raise their families in a hotel. This program has allowed me to provide stable housing for my family and I...It's given my family hope, stability and allowed a better living situation than I ever thought was possible on my own."
